introduction

The Sacramento Region Databook is a demographic and economic survey of the six-county Sacramento Region, including El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Yolo, and Yuba Counties. The Databook is designed as a resource for companies interested in relocating to, establishing, expanding, or investing in the Region.

Topics and data covered within this publication include an overview of the Region's Demographics, Business Climate & Workforce, Education, Infrastructure, Real Estate, and Quality of Life. The directory provides contact details for various public agencies, media organizations, colleges/universities, public school districts, cultural entities, hospitals, transportation providers, and utilities within the Sacramento Region.

LOCATION

The Region is home to California's capital city, Sacramento, which is situated at the confluence of the American and Sacramento Rivers, located in the north-central portion of the state. This central location provides convenient access through major highways and freeways to other large metropolitan areas including San Francisco (87 miles west); Reno, Nevada (135 miles northwest); and Los Angeles (385 miles southwest).

The entire six-county Sacramento Region is surrounded by 11 California counties and two Nevada counties and covers a land area of 6,328 square miles (4.1 percent of the state's total area).

HISTORY

Sacramento originated with Captain John Sutter's settlement of the colony in 1839, granted by permission of the Mexican government (the ruling entity at the time). Founded in 1849, the City of Sacramento is the oldest chartered city in California and soon thereafter, in 1854, became the state capital.

The discovery of gold in the Sierra Foothills attracted a flood of migrants to the Region. The burgeoning population included entrepreneurs that originally served the miners' needs, but later supported the Region's growing economy. Today, the Sacramento Region boasts a diversified economy with traditional and innovative economic activity that provides stability and growth to the market. Many companies, including those originating out-of-state, abroad, and from the San Francisco Bay Area, relocate to or establish in the Sacramento Region for various reasons such as the quality of life and workforce. These factors and various others contribute to the rapid growth and development experienced in the Sacramento Region.

demographics

Over the past 10 years, the total population of the six-county Sacramento Region has increased to more than 2.3 million people, a growth rate of almost 26 percent (9 percent above California's rate of growth) and is forecasted to grow more than 19 percent over the next 10 years—around 5 percent faster than the projected statewide growth. An average of about 60 percent of the Region's annual population growth over the past five years can be attributed to net migration (the balance of people moving to and out of the Sacramento Region from within the United States, incoming foreign immigrants, and people moving out of the Region to live abroad).

With the population growth seen in the Sacramento Region, the number of housing units naturally follows that increase. Total housing units in the Sacramento Region increased 25 percent in the last 10 years to nearly 882,000 total units, double California's percentage change in the same time period.

Per capita income in the Region (more than $36,000 in 2006) has grown nearly 54 percent in the past 10 years—similar to the statewide growth trend.

This section offers data that demonstrate the continuous development of the Sacramento Region. Current and historical data show how the Region has grown in terms of number of people, housing units, and personal income. The topics covered in this section include total population, net migration, population ethnicity, housing units, household composition, income, and population projections (from the California Department of Transportation, 2007 Long-Term Socio-Economic Forecasts by County).

SACRAMENTO AREA COMMERCE AND TRADE ORGANIZATION

Sacramento – California's Rising Star

Sacramento is scaling new heights. An educated workforce, smart growth policies and a rising creative class have fueled the emergence of California's capital city onto the national scene.

Kiplinger Magazine ranks Sacramento as the 8th best U.S. city "to live, work and play." Fast Company Magazine calls Sacramento one of the "15 up-and-coming hubs for creative workers – places that draw people who are talented, tech savvy, and tolerant." Frommers.com calls Sacramento "the most attractive big-city state capital in the Western 48." All this and Brookings Institute ranked Sacramento 12th in the nation for shrinking its carbon footprint.

Behind it all there's SMUD, the Sacramento Municipal Utility District. SMUD was ranked "Highest in Customer Satisfaction among Business Electric Services in the Western U.S." in both 2007 and 2008.*

Put Sacramento on your company's short list for expansion or relocation, and cast your fortunes with California's rising star.

SMUD - Bringing you Earth-friendly solutions.

*SMUD received the highest numerical score among electric utility providers in Western U.S. in the proprietary J.D. Power and Associates 2007-2008 Electric Utility Business Customer Satisfaction Study<sup>SM</sup>. Study based on responses from 13,588 interviews with U.S. business electric customers measuring 13 utilities in the West (AZ, CA, ID, NM, NV, OR, UT, WA, WY). Proprietary study results are based on experiences and perceptions of customers surveyed September-December 2007. Your experiences may vary. Visit jdpower.com

Total employment has also had significant increases—total Nonfarm employment in the Sacramento Region has increased almost 29 percent since 1997 to 946,000 jobs and is projected to reach nearly 1.2 million jobs over the next 10 years. With an approximate 32 percent increase from 1997 to 2007, the Region's private sector has grown significantly more than the public sector (which experienced 21 percent 10-year growth) and accounts for 74 percent of total Nonfarm employment. At 5.6 percent, the Sacramento Region's 2007 unemployment rate is slightly above that of California.

The Government sector is the largest industry sector in the Sacramento Region in terms of employment (over 247,000 employees in 2007 or close to 26 percent of the total industry employment). The second and third largest sectors are Trade, Transportation & Utilities and Professional & Business Services, respectively comprising around 17 and 12 percent of employment. Over the past 10 years, the Construction and Educational & Health Services sectors demonstrated the highest rates of growth (around 83 percent and 51 percent, respectively). Some major employers in the Sacramento Region include Kaiser Permanente, Sutter Health, Raley's/Bel Air, Intel Corporation, and UC Davis Medical Center.

Almost 20 percent of employment by occupation is within the Office & Administrative Support occupational category. Other occupational categories with a large proportion of employment include Sales & Related occupations and Food Preparation & Serving Related occupations.

The Sacramento Region's taxable sales, an indicator of business activity, have increased around 29 percent from 2001 to 2006, compared to California's increase of almost 27 percent in the same time period.

The topics covered within this section include current, historical, and projected employment (total and broken down by public and private sectors, by major industry sectors, and by occupational categories), major employers, labor force data, average wages, and taxable sales. Employment projections are from the California Department of Transportation, 2007 Long-Term Socio-Economic Forecasts by County.

WITHIN

the six-county S A C R A M E N T O region

There is SACTO

The Sacramento Area Commerce & Trade Organization (SACTO) is the region's leading facilitator of economic development bringing together the organizations, information, and resources in the pursuit of jobs, talent, and investment needed to ensure regional prosperity and global competitiveness. The organization's success is shared by the many regional partners involved in the execution of its extensive business attraction activities, ranging from marketing missions to other markets to a comprehensive external public relations strategy to create "top of the mind awareness" of the Sacramento Region in the national and international media . . . and everything in between.

SACTO's business location and expansion experts help companies realize the benefits of locating in the Sacramento Region. Affordable real estate, an abundant and educated workforce, seismic stability, excellent schools, and a superior quality of life are just some of the many reasons companies and their employees flourish here.

education

The Sacramento Region has 720 schools and an enrollment of over 397,000 students within the K–12 system. The most recent data of high school graduation rates shows that at nearly 82 percent, the Sacramento Region has a slightly higher percentage of graduates than the state (nearly 80 percent). In terms of SAT scores, the Sacramento Region averages higher than California with a total average score of 1517 for the 2006–2007 school year in comparison to 1497 for the state.

Twenty-nine percent of the Sacramento Region population aged 25 years and over in the year 2006 held a Bachelor's degree or higher level of education. The Region has a varied offering of public and private postsecondary institutions, including University of California, Davis and Sacramento State as the major four-year universities (with approximately 30,000 students each in the 2007 Fall term), and eight California community colleges.

This section provides an overview of K–12 and postsecondary education in the Sacramento Region, including K–12 enrollment by school type, high school graduation rates, SAT scores, educational attainment, as well as higher education institution enrollment and degrees granted.

THE BIG BUILD

BUILDING A BETTER GATEWAY TO NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Big changes are afoot at Sacramento International Airport. We're calling it The Big Build. In fact, it's the largest capital improvement project in Sacramento County history. The terminal modernization project will build capacity and make flying out of Sacramento even easier. The light and spacious design includes an intuitive layout, plenty of parking, an integrated hotel—even an automated people mover. Easy come, easy go. See how the project is going at BigBuild.org.

BIGBUILD.ORG

infrastructure

A developed and accessible transportation network is essential to an inland metropolitan area's success. The Sacramento Region boasts such a network, made up of interstate freeways, transcontinental railways, a cargo port, and an international airport. In addition to transportation networks, public transportation availability, utilities, and hospitals all contribute to the quality of a region's physical and social infrastructure.

With 13 major carriers, the Sacramento International Airport provides direct and connecting flights to major domestic and international destinations. The airport has seen impressive growth—over the past five years, the number of passengers and total air freight (in pounds) have respectively increased about 27 percent and 29 percent.

There are four major public transportation systems in the Region, including Sacramento Regional Transit (RT), Tahoe Area Regional Transit (TART), Yuba Sutter Transit, and YoloBus. In fiscal year 2007-2008, the largest public transportation system, Sacramento RT, served 16.6 million bus passengers and nearly 16 million light rail passengers.

The City of Sacramento has embarked on a venture to design and develop the Sacramento Intermodal Transportation Facility Project (SITF). The facility will be a “state of the art” transportation center in downtown Sacramento that will serve as a regional hub, transfer point, and portal. It will meet the long-term functional and operational needs for passenger rail, light rail, bus services, bicyclists, pedestrians, taxicabs, and automobiles. In addition, other rail operations will be included at the site, including Union Pacific Railroad (UP) freight line service, State Railroad Museum rail car movements, and future high speed rail.

The SITF is envisioned as a regional destination and gateway to the city. It will integrate retail, commercial, and entertainment development; and transportation services. The facility will link the regional and local transportation networks and connect directly with adjacent districts, including the Central Business District, Old Sacramento, the Riverfront, Alkali Flat, and the Railyards. The facility is also viewed as a landmark destination and includes the historic Southern Pacific Railroad (SP) depot.

Electricity in the Sacramento Region is provided by three utilities: Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E), Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD), and Roseville Electric. In addition to electricity, PG&E also provides natural gas to the entire Sacramento Region. There are many water and wastewater service providers in the Region—most of which are operated at the city or county level, a couple through investor or publicly owned utilities.

Health care services are an important part of a region's social infrastructure. The Sacramento Region has 20 acute care hospitals with a total of more than 4,100 beds. The largest hospitals are operated by the University of California, Davis Medical Center; Sutter Health; Catholic Healthcare West (CHW)/ Mercy Healthcare; Kaiser Permanente; and Methodist Hospital of Sacramento.

The Infrastructure section includes data to provide a better understanding of the Region's transportation network (including average commute times, airport passenger and cargo totals, and public transportation statistics), as well as utility providers and rates and acute care hospitals.

The Sacramento Region's commercial real estate market has seen notable growth over the past five years with an increase of over 18 percent of office and nearly 7 percent of industrial inventory (in terms of square footage). According to Colliers International, the Sacramento office market, which includes areas in the six-county Sacramento Region, had a total of over 85 million square feet in rental building space in the third quarter of 2008 and around 1.8 million square feet under construction. In this quarter, total inventory in the Region's industrial market included approximately 184 million square feet and around 288,000 square feet under construction. The office market vacancy rate in the third quarter of 2008 was slightly above the average over the past five years while the industrial market vacancy rate was below the average.

The Sacramento market's median home price in the first quarter of 2008 was $259,000—lower than California's overall median home price of $349,000 and most comparison metropolitan areas in the state.

This section of the Databook provides current and historical commercial real estate data for the office and industrial markets in the Sacramento Region. This data, provided by Colliers International, includes vacancy rates, net absorption, average lease rates, inventory, and construction. Also included within this section is an overview of the Region's housing prices and affordability.

quality of life

The Sacramento Region appeals to diverse lifestyles and interests and offers a superior quality of life. Counties and cities within the Region have a strong sense of community loyalty, founded on cultural, historical, and geographical ties. Recreational activities, professional sports, and cultural events are abundant and available to all who live in and visit the area.

There are various historical attractions, including the California State Railroad Museum, Crocker Art Museum, Sutter's Fort, and the California Museum for History, Women and the Arts located in Sacramento. Regional performing arts groups and venues include Music Circus, Sacramento Ballet, Sacramento Philharmonic Orchestra, Sacramento Community Center Theater, Sacramento Opera, and the Mondavi Center. The California State Fair and the Sacramento Jazz Jubilee are major annual events in the Region that attract thousands of visitors from outside the region.

Professional sports teams, such as the Sacramento Kings and Monarchs (NBA and WNBA) and the AAA minor-league baseball team, River Cats, call Sacramento home. A mild climate and proximity to various destinations such as San Francisco, South Lake Tahoe, and other ski locations in the Sierra Nevada mountain range also contribute to the Sacramento Region's quality of life. This section presents quality of life data and information about climate, ground stability, culture and entertainment, recreation, distance to selected locations, and crime rates.
